LA COLLECTION PAPIYÒT

International Buyer Orientation Package

Ten cottages. Ten butterflies. One sanctuary.

Buyer orientation and website-portal content. This document is not a contract, legal offer, final specification or investment guarantee. All images of the cottage are computer-generated and indicative only.

Revision D · August 2026 · Savannes Bay, Micoud, Saint Lucia

INTRODUCTION

Welcome to SHER

SHER Sanctuary Experiences introduces an intimate collection of ten tropical cottages on the eastern shore of Savannes Bay, in the south of Saint Lucia. The buyer experience is built around privacy, natural materials, indoor-outdoor living, a recognisable butterfly-roof identity and a deliberately low-density relationship with the landscape.

The cottages sit within a wider conservation-led estate that also includes hospitality, condominium and villa components, together with a protected wetland area held permanently as no-build. The cottage described in this package corresponds to the Eco-Cottage tier of the SHER Property Buyer Programme.

The collection is not offered for open sale. Ten cottages exist in total, and none is presently available for selection. Entry is by qualification: applicants who qualify are entered in the Register of Intent, and cottages are allocated in phases to registrants in order. Pricing is issued to qualified registrants in the Buyer Information Pack and is not published.

Reading this document

This package is written for buyers who are not resident in Saint Lucia. It sets out the setting, the cottage concept, the design intent and the purchasing sequence, and it identifies the matters you should place in front of your own legal, tax, financial and technical advisers before you become contractually committed.

IMPORTANT Images, plans, maps, layouts and descriptions are for buyer orientation and marketing only. Final boundaries, title, ownership structure, specifications, pricing, fees, delivery dates, rental terms and construction obligations are fixed only in the executed legal and technical documents.

La Collection Papiyòt

Papiyòt is the Saint Lucian Kwéyòl word for butterfly — distinct from papiyon, which here denotes a moth. Each of the ten cottages carries the name of a butterfly recorded in Saint Lucia, giving every residence a memorable identity, a colour story and a conservation narrative, while the ten remain a single, controlled architectural family.

The butterfly identity is fixed to the cottage. It is a permanent part of that residence and is not a buyer selection — the cottage is allocated at release, and the identity comes with it. Within that identity, a buyer selects from an approved range of finishes, furnishings and commissioned artwork.

★ Le Polydamas is the signature of the collection. The Saint Lucia Gold Rim Swallowtail, Battus polydamas lucianus, is a subspecies described from this island and found nowhere else in the world.

Every species named above is drawn from published records for Saint Lucia. The verification record is retained by SHER and is available to buyers, conservation partners and prospective operators on request.

The Cottage Experience

Open-plan kitchen and living space with timber ceiling, screened glazing and landscape-facing veranda. Computer-generated image.

The cottage is conceived as a refined private retreat rather than a conventional hotel room. The living area, kitchen, bedroom, bathroom and veranda are arranged as one calm sequence shaped by shade, airflow, privacy and landscape views.

Signature design attributes

- Butterfly roof and deep protective overhangs.
- Raised construction on discrete supports, with a clear underfloor shadow line.
- Natural timber, stone and warm neutral finishes.
- Large screened openings with storm-ready closures.
- Covered veranda for dining, lounging and quiet observation.
- King bedroom suite with built-in wardrobe and luggage storage.
- En-suite bathroom and private outdoor shower.
- Concealed services and restrained low-level lighting.

The intent throughout is a calm, contemporary Caribbean character rather than resort spectacle.

LAYOUT

Floor Plan Orientation

The supplied plan indicates an enclosed cottage of approximately 32 feet by 28 feet 6 inches, together with a covered veranda.

Cottage Type A orientation plan. Dimensions and areas require confirmation in final approved drawings.

The plan shows

- Living and lounge zone
- Full kitchen with peninsula seating
- King bedroom suite
- Built-in wardrobe and luggage storage
- En-suite bathroom
- Private outdoor shower
- Covered entry
- Covered veranda

For orientation only. The signed purchase documents and the final approved architectural drawings control all dimensions, areas and inclusions.

Private Suite and Wellness

Bathroom concept with timber joinery, natural stone, controlled daylight and a private outdoor shower. Computer-generated image.

The bathroom is designed as a private wellness room rather than a service space: natural materials, screened daylight, concealed storage and a protected outdoor shower connection open to the sky but shielded from every sightline.

The arrival side of the cottage is intentionally more protected than the landscape-facing veranda. The objective is a gradual reveal — a sheltered entrance, controlled privacy, and clear separation between guest arrival and service activity.

Approved personalisation

Structure, roof geometry, envelope, wet areas, service interfaces and the butterfly identity of the cottage are controlled and are not open to informal variation. Within those controls, buyers select from an approved range of finishes, joinery colours, furnishing packages and commissioned artwork developed for their cottage's identity.

SETTING

Location Orientation

SHER Sanctuary lies within the Savannes Bay area on the south-east coast of Saint Lucia, in the Micoud district, with frontage addressed to the bay and Scorpion Islet beyond.

Savannes Bay is a shallow, sheltered bay fringed by mangrove and seagrass. That setting is the reason for the estate’s conservation posture, and for the permanent no-build designation over the wetland parcel.

The maps in this package are for orientation only. Access, travel times, parcel boundaries, easements, utilities and legal descriptions must be taken from the final survey, title documents and approved development information.

Understanding the Development Context

Conceptual land-use diagram indicating hospitality, condominium, villa, cottage and protected areas.

The conceptual plan identifies separate hospitality, condominium, villa, cottage and protected wetland areas. The cottage collection occupies its own landscape zone as a low-density cluster, served by an internal access route and oriented to the bay.

Parcel 905 is shown as protected wetland and no-build. That designation is a voluntary conservation commitment made by SHER, not merely a regulatory minimum, and it is intended to be permanent.

Confirm before you commit

- Exact cottage allocation and orientation.
- Boundaries, access, parking and utility rights.
- Common-area obligations and landscape controls.
- Current environmental, planning and development approvals.

The diagram is a marketing and planning orientation image. It is not a legal survey or a final site plan.

Your Buyer Journey

Eight stages, from first enquiry to handover. The collection is not offered for open sale: entry is by qualification, and cottages are allocated in phases to registrants in order. Nothing binds either party until the executed agreements are in place.

1 Register interest

Register your interest in the collection and record your intended use, target timing, purchasing entity and funding basis. You do not select a cottage at this stage, and no cottage is offered or reserved.

2 Qualification review

A confidential, mutual review. SHER considers intended use, purchasing entity, funding basis, and your acceptance of the estate's conservation commitments — including the permanent no-build designation over the wetland. Not every application proceeds, and SHER is not obliged to give reasons.

3 The Register of Intent

Qualified applicants are entered in the Register of Intent in order of qualification. There is no fee to join the Register, no funds are taken, and entry is non-binding on both sides. The Register determines the order in which you are invited when a phase is released.

4 Independent professional review

Appoint your own Saint Lucia-qualified legal adviser and obtain independent tax, financial, immigration, insurance and technical advice. If you are not a national of Saint Lucia, begin the Alien Landholding Licence enquiry described overleaf. Completing this before allocation means you are transaction-ready when invited.

5 Release and allocation

Cottages are released in phases. Registrants are invited in order to receive an allocation for a specific cottage. Preferences are noted but cannot be guaranteed: the cottage — and with it the butterfly identity that belongs to it permanently — is allocated, not chosen. An allocation is time-limited.

6 Reservation, contract and due diligence

Sign the applicable reservation documentation and place funds only through the payment process stated in the legal documents. Review title, survey, ownership structure, licensing conditions, construction obligations, payment milestones, default provisions, completion conditions, common-area rights and operating rules.

7 Personalisation and construction

Select from the controlled range of finish, furnishing and artwork options developed for your cottage's identity. Track milestones, approved photographs, decisions, notices and inspections through the buyer portal.

8 Completion and handover

Complete contractual inspections, close agreed defects, and receive keys, warranties, operating guides and the final ownership or occupancy documentation required by the purchase structure.

NO FEE Registering interest and joining the Register of Intent are free. No money is requested at any point before an allocation is issued and the reservation documentation is in front of you.

Ownership by International Buyers

Saint Lucia regulates the acquisition of land by persons who are not nationals of Saint Lucia. In general terms, a non-national who wishes to acquire an interest in land is required to hold an Alien Landholding Licence before that interest can validly be taken. A company is assessed by reference to its shareholding and control, so a locally incorporated company with non-national ownership is ordinarily treated in the same way as an individual non-national.

This is a licensing requirement, not an obstacle, and it is a routine part of Caribbean cross-border property transactions. It does, however, affect three things a buyer needs to plan for: the identity of the purchasing entity, the transaction timetable, and the total cost of acquisition.

What to establish with your attorney

- Whether your intended purchasing entity — individual, company, or trust — requires a licence, and in whose name the licence must be issued.
- The application requirements, supporting documents and character references you will need to assemble.
- The realistic processing time, and how the purchase agreement handles the period before the licence is granted.
- The licence fee, and how it interacts with stamp duty, property transfer charges and legal fees applicable to non-nationals.
- What happens to your deposit and to the agreement if a licence is refused or delayed beyond an agreed long-stop date.
- Any conditions attached to the licence, including limits on the land area, permitted use, or subsequent transfer.
- The position on inheritance, resale and assignment, and whether a further licence is required from a future buyer.

NOTE SHER does not provide legal or tax advice and does not act for the buyer. The requirements, fees and processing times applicable to a licence are matters of Saint Lucian law and administrative practice and may change. Every non-national buyer must take independent advice from a Saint Lucia-qualified attorney before signing or transferring funds.

The Buyer Information Pack sets out how the purchase agreement is structured to accommodate the licensing process, including the conditions, timetable and remedies that apply if a licence is not obtained.

How Your Deposit Is Held

No money is requested before an allocation is issued. Registering interest and entry to the Register of Intent are free, and SHER does not take deposits to hold a place in the queue.

Once an allocation is issued, Saint Lucia does not operate a statutory deposit-protection scheme for off-plan residential sales. Protection therefore comes from the structure of the transaction itself, and a buyer is entitled to see that structure in writing before any money moves.

The principles SHER applies

- Reservation and deposit funds are received into a designated account identified in the executed legal documents, and nowhere else.
- The receiving account, the signatories and the conditions for release are stated in writing before you are asked to transfer.
- Funds are released against defined contractual events, not on request.
- Refund rights, long-stop dates and the consequences of default are set out in the agreement, in both directions.
- Every receipt is issued in writing and recorded against your cottage in the buyer portal.

What to require before transferring funds

- Written confirmation of the receiving account, including the account holder's legal name.
- Confirmation of whether funds are held as stakeholder or as agent, and by whom.
- The precise circumstances in which the deposit becomes non-refundable.
- Your attorney's independent confirmation that the arrangement is appropriate for your position.

NEVER Do not transfer funds to an account communicated only by email, message or telephone, and do not transfer to any account that differs from the one named in your executed documents. Confirm account details independently, through a channel you have initiated, before every transfer.

The specific deposit arrangement for La Collection Papiyòt is confirmed in the Buyer Information Pack and in the reservation documentation. It remains an open item until those documents are issued.

Your Buyer Portal

From registration through handover and beyond, your position has a single record. The portal is where qualification, documents, decisions, money and progress are reconciled.

Frequently Asked Questions

Are the images final?

No. All cottage images in this package are computer-generated and communicate approved design intent. The signed legal documents, final drawings and specifications control what is delivered.

Can I change the layout?

Only approved options may be offered. Changes affecting structure, roof, envelope, wet areas, services, statutory approvals or manufacturing cannot be made informally.

How do I qualify?

Qualification is a confidential, mutual review covering intended use, purchasing entity, funding basis and acceptance of the estate's conservation commitments. The criteria are issued on request. Not every application proceeds, and SHER is not obliged to give reasons.

Is there a fee to join the Register of Intent?

No. Registration and entry to the Register are free and non-binding on both sides. No money is requested at any point before an allocation is issued and the reservation documentation is in front of you. A place in the Register cannot be purchased.

Can I choose my cottage, or its butterfly?

No. Cottages are released in phases and allocated to registrants in order. You may record a preference, but it cannot be guaranteed. Each butterfly identity is permanently attached to a specific cottage, so the identity comes with the allocation. Finishes, furnishings and artwork are then selected within that identity.

How long is the wait?

That depends on your position in the Register and on the release programme, neither of which SHER will overstate. Registrants are notified in advance of each phase.

I am not a Saint Lucian national. Can I buy?

Yes, subject to the licensing requirements described in this package. A non-national ordinarily requires an Alien Landholding Licence, and your attorney should confirm the position for your intended purchasing entity before you sign.

Frequently Asked Questions

Is furniture included?

The final inclusions are confirmed in the executed specification and inventory.

Can the cottage be rented?

Any rental programme, restrictions, income arrangements and management fees must be confirmed in the applicable legal and operating documents. Nothing in this package is a representation of rental income.

When do I see pricing?

Pricing is issued in the Buyer Information Pack once qualification is complete. It is not published, and it is not the basis on which applications are assessed.

What costs are not included in the price?

You should receive a written schedule covering taxes, duties, licence fees, legal fees, financing costs, insurance, utilities, service charges, furniture and other exclusions.

When will my cottage be completed?

Rely only on the programme and completion conditions stated in the contract, and on formally issued revisions.

What protects my deposit?

See “How Your Deposit Is Held”. The legal documents must identify the receiving account, the basis on which funds are held, the release conditions and your refund rights. Obtain independent legal advice before transferring funds.

What happens after completion?

You receive a handover pack, warranties, operating information, maintenance obligations and contact details for the relevant service providers.
